Termite TV, Water, 2007, digital still

(Philadelphia, December 2010) This winter, InLiquid presents THE BASICS TRILOGY: Water Food Shelter, an exhibition of videos and two-dimensional work produced by Termite TV at the International House Video Lounge. The exhibition will be on view from December 10 through March 4, 2011. There will be a reception for the artists on Wednesday, December 15, 2010 from 6 to 8 pm.

THE BASICS TRILOGY features experimental activist video group Termite TV Collective's latest series of shows based on basic human essentials, "Water," "Food," and "Shelter" produced by Buffalo media artist Meg Knowles, Baltimore-based artist Joanna Raczynska and Philadelphia's Sara Zia Ebrahimi. Featuring work by: Sarah Christman, Michael Kuetemeyer, A.Q Quintero, Bob Hering & Maria Cortese Hering, Iden Rosenthal, Deborah Rudman, Anula Shetty. Brian Milbrand, and Courtney Grim.

WATER, 2007

While we attempt to restrict water use through pacts and treaties, sometimes we just can't stop that slow leak on the roof. Termite TV explores a variety of water-y issues, both poetic and political. (29 min.)

FOOD, 2008

As our basic needs become more and more dear, our modes of survival must be creative, efficient, and self-sustaining. Termite TV examines what food means to us and to the media, and what our current conditions imply. (29 min.)

SHELTER, 2009

Housing problems, alternative architecture, concepts of home, and sanctuaries are all featured in Termite TV's final third of THE BASICS TRILOGY. (29 min.)
